III. Conversation Practice

Practice the conversation with your teacher by doing a role play.

Steve: Thanks for coming in.

Paul: Thank you for taking the time.

Steve: Tell me why you think you're right for this position.

Paul: I have a lot of product expertise as I've been in the equity business for 12 years and I'm also a very good manager. My division has been the biggest revenue producer for the last three years. I manage a team of 12 people and they're very loyal to me.

Steve: If we hired you, do you think your team would want to follow you?

Paul: Yes, I believe they would.

Steve: Ok, we can discuss that another time. Tell me your biggest fault.

Paul: I would say my biggest fault is working too hard sometimes. I'm very driven to succeed and it sometimes gets in the way of my personal life.

Steve: I see. Having a balanced life is very important. I want you to work hard but not at the expense of your health and family. I don't want you to burn out.

Paul: I appreciate that. I'm trying to get better at spending time with my children.

Comprehension Check

- 1. What are Steve's questions to Paul?
- 2. What position is Paul applying for?
- 3. Why does Paul think that he is right for the position?
